

Complex Carbohydrate Research Center

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

The Urbanowicz Lab at the University of Georgia's Complex Carbohydrate Research Center invites applicants for two fully funded postdoctoral research positions and one laboratory technician available immediately. These positions will expand our efforts to study biochemical pathways involved in the synthesis of plant cell wall polysaccharides. The laboratory is leveraging the development of new tools for heterologous expression of plant enzymes and innovating high throughput assays for validation of gene function. We're especially seeking in applicants that are interested in the intersection of plant biology, biochemistry, glycobiology, and phenotypic variation. For more information about this position please contact Dr. Breeanna Urbanowicz (<https://ccrc.uga.edu/team/breeanna-urbanowicz/>)

The successful applicant will hold a PhD degree in plant biology, chemistry, biochemistry, biotechnology, or bio-engineering/applied biological sciences. We are looking for an enthusiastic scientist with excellent laboratory skills, who functions well in a team, and has a track record of research in the field of plant biochemistry. Please send your CV including, a description of research interests and skills, together with the names and email addresses of 3 referees, and a motivation letter, to sheilah@ccrc.uga.edu with 'postdoc plant cell wall' in the subject line.
